

Solife, the BSB software for life-insurance, now also equipped with an Internet portal for brokers and clients

Luxembourg, 3 December 2008, 7:30 am.

Solife, the BSB software for the management of insurance policies is now also equipped with an Internet portal intended for the partners, the brokers and the clients of insurance companies. This portal, called e-Solife, offers presales (simulations, offers, propositions) and portfolio management tools (consultation, technical and administrative action deeds) as well as functions allowing to consult the activities of the different partners (follow-up of fees, commercial activities and production).

e-Solife is an Internet platform of the latest generation. It is a highly performing tool, allowing insurance companies to build and stimulate in an efficient way their distribution networks. Through a specific « client » access, each insured can consult and manage on-line his own life-insurance contracts.

e-Solife is based on Service Oriented Architecture (secured webservices) and has a rich and flexible user interface (RIA) developed in the Flex technology of Adobe. The visual aspects of this interface can be adapted and are easy to customize. In this way, each insurance company can put forward its own corporate image. The advanced management of the user preferences allows the brokers to create their own work space tailored to their individual needs.

The perfect integration between the existing back-office Solife and the new front-office e-Solife, guarantees an optimal end-to-end management of the life-insurance activity.
